

What makes your idea different from anything else that already exists?

ReCourse is unique because current platforms only have one specific functionality. For example: Udemy and Coursera are educational resources, LinkedIn connects a user with other students and industry professionals, Slack and Microsoft Teams provide a messaging platform for organizations, and applications like Zoom allow for video conferencing. Unfortunately, there is no single platform that combines all of these into a functional app that connects students to recruiters, while also allowing them to learn from each other.
